HEN AND SKUNK PELT. Among Odd Things Rural Carrier Found in Parcel Post Offerings.

There has been a vast amount of Joking about things that might be sent by parcel post, this by cartoon-ists and others, but imagination is not ists and others, but imagination is not outrunning realities it is apparent. Rural Carrier Arthur W. Logee out of the Danielson office on a recent morning found a live hen hitched to one of the mail boxes out in the country east of here, with a tag bearing destination directions tied to its leg. He, of course, could not accept the hen, the regulations forbidding the transportation of living things (excepting bees and bugs) by parcel post. Another highly scented offering to Carrier Logee was the pelt of a skunk. This was in a bag. As this arrange-This was in a bag. Receive Many Callers at Headquarters in Tatem Building-Work in Nearby Towns.

The women workers for full suffrage rights who are conducting a campaign in this city had a busy day Tuesday. Their headquarters in the Tatem building attracted a large number of persons anxious to hear the arguments of the speakers, who are earnest and capable talkers, and to examine the very interesting exhibits hung about the walls. A particularly interesting exhibit is that of a map of the United exhibit is that of a map of the United States, so arranged as to coloring as to show which states have granted full suffrage rights, which of the states have made partial concessions, and those states wherein woman has received no recognition as to franchise rights up to the present time.
